A Ban on Mobile Phones

Your school has decided that mobile phones will not be allowed in school any more, so the following sign has been placed everywhere.

You have been invited to write a commentary for the newsletter at your friendship school in Australia with your opinion about the recent ban on mobile phones at your school.

These comments are from debates on the use of mobile phones in schools.

“We must encourage pupils to use their phones constructively.”

Ms A. George, teacher

“Give us a chance to show we can use technology in good ways.”

Lee, chairman of the student council

“Phones can act as a “breeding ground” for cyber-bullying and social media can damage mental health.”

Ms L. Dear, SoMe expert

“We think mobile phones are extremely distracting for children and they interrupt their concentration.”

Mr T. Laycock, head teacher

“Phones should be incorporated into lessons as an essential part of the subjects.”

Mrs T. Kirkwood, parent

“One of the things we should learn in school is the skill of managing and moderating our mobile phone use.”

Katie, student year 11

Write your commentary for the newsletter (500-600 words).

Include the following:

- Discuss the pros and cons of banning the use of mobile phones at school
- Explain the reasons for your opinion
- Describe a positive/negative use of mobile phones in connection with school activities
- Comment on the importance of mobile phones for young people in general.

A commentary is a text where you comment on something others have decided, said or written. The purpose of a commentary is to express the writer’s opinion about a certain topic.

Break Your Limit

How can you move from your comfort zone to a growth zone? A movement from being shy and lacking confidence to a new zone, taking up challenges and fulfilling your dreams.

This is exactly what Ian McGregor from Scotland did this year, when he broke his limit by facing his fears and breaking his routines. "I never thought I would be able to actually make the change, but I just knew I had to do something to prove myself." says Ian.

Imagine you have met and interviewed Ian McGregor about his experiences on taking action and breaking his personal limits. Your article will be uploaded on the online youth forum Break Your Limit.

Other articles on the online youth forum Break Your Limit spoke about developing a new skill, being selected for a sports team, meeting new people, travelling to new countries or learning to perform in front of others.

Write an article (500-600 words) about Ian McGregor's experiences on how he broke his personal limit.

Include:

- What Ian struggled with
- How it affected him in his everyday life
- What kind of actions he took to break his limit
- Ways to cope with breaking limits in general.

An article is a piece of writing on a particular subject in a newspaper, magazine or online for a large audience. The main aim of an article is to get it published and thereby share your views with as many readers as possible.
