Doing trick shots and ~~post~~ them on social media is becoming popular with many teenagers. James Wilson, a young Australian football player, has taken it to a higher level than most. You have properly seen him on Instagram, demonstrating his skills, in clips which have been shared countless times.

According to James, his skills come from his passion for playing the traditional 11-a-side game. "Since I was tree, I have always been kicking a ball, so the skills have come from that," the 19-year-old said. "As I got older, I began doing crazier things, I guess."

This year, he claimed a Guinness World Record for juggling toilet paper with one foot 84 times in 30 seconds. "There is nothing like being good to something," James expressed humbly.

Some people still doesn't get it and ask themselves why a young man would waste time juggling things like toilet paper. For James Wilson, it is defiantly not a pointless pastime and peoples opinions hardly affect him.

Recently, James Wilson had his skills shown of by Real Madrid, the world's biggest football club. "I think Real Madrid sharing my videos has to be the highlight so far. It's just so cool."

The Big Apple

Your family has decided to travel to New York for a week in December.

You spend a week experiencing the sights, sounds and people of New York.

Write a travel blog (350-450 words) of your trip, which will be uploaded to the website Teen Travel Forum. Teen Travel Forum is dedicated to encouraging young people to travel and explore other countries.

Your blog must include the following points:

- sights, sounds and experiences from your week in New York
- a meeting with a New Yorker
- the differences there are between Danish and American cultures
- your ideas as to what can be gained by travelling to other countries.

A travel blog is a personal account of a journey, usually written while the person is travelling. It can include stories and travel tips which focus on e.g. sights, shopping and activities.
